You are in a Dual Career situation ...

In professional life and in particular in science, the number of couples with both partners pursuing a professional career is increasing. These so-called dual career couples, face several challenges when one partner changes his or her scientific environment. In the majority of cases the requirements in term of time flexibility and mobility conflict with the wish for a professional career of both partners and a joint family life. Often, career and family are compatible only if the employer actively supports the career of the partner and provides individual support.

The aim is to support dual careers and to offer suitable starting conditions to new employees of KIT.
